At St. Bede's we believe that a reasonable amount of homework, based on sound educational principles, will support and enhance children's learning.

Our expectation of homework is that it will further enrich the learning experiences we provide for children and will help us to achieve the principles set out in our Mission and Curriculum Statements.

We recognise the importance of an active educational partnership between home and school. Homework is one way in which we seek to foster this partnership.

Homework is best viewed as "any activity that seeks to make effective links between home and school in supporting children's learning and development."

'Love one another as I have loved you'

Why Do Homework?

Well planned and structured homework can:

- Encourage pupils to develop independent study skills and to develop a sense of self-discipline, responsibility and good working habits.
- Provide opportunities for individualised work.
- Foster enjoyment in reading and develop fluency and expression.
- Enable consolidation of learning that has already taken place.
- Provide extra practice when needed.
- Help parents gain an insight into their child's school work.

What Kinds Of Homework Might My Child Have?

- The reinforcement of basic language and mathematical skills.
- Activities undertaken with family and friends.
- Individual research activities.
- The completion of activities that have not been finished in the classroom during the time allocated.
